

Training for Evaluation skills

In order to constantly improve and preserve our high standards on the quality of our project the impact and feasibility of the Boxgirls South Africa Girls' Afterschool Leadership Clubs will be evaluated by the German Sport University and local research partners from the University of the Western Cape.

The evaluation will be conducted in four steps. First the Baseline and Pre-test will be accomplished before the start of the program, in order to gather information about the present situation. With the end of the program a post-test will show changes before and after the Boxgirls' Afterschool Leadership Education program. Lastly a post-post test will emphasize the sustainability of the programs impact. We will evaluate the impact of our project from all angles, so not only the girls, but also the parents and the expert view of the teachers will be involved in the evaluation process.

Realizing an evaluation like that requires well trained researcher assistances and a well prepared team. Marie Biermann from the German Sports University hold a workshop on all phases of evaluation for the Boxgirls South Africa team and research helpers.

Not only are the adults learning about evaluation, but also the girls' train their presentation and communication skills. As part of Boxgirls Leadership Education program the girls' train their skills through giving small presentations, giving feedback, being encouraged to give their own opinion and train their listening skills.
